

How to Get Scuba Certified...

A scuba course consists of three parts: the classroom, the pool, and Open Water Dives. The classroom and pool run concurrently for a total of six sessions, either once a week or twice a week. This allows you time to read the textbook between sessions and to completely learn each new lesson. Scuba education is cumulative. Each new lesson builds on previous learning. To truly learn, time is required. Your certification is good for a lifetime and we will devote the time required for lifetime learning.

Your Open Water Dives will be conducted over two days. You may make these over a weekend here in Ohio or during most of our store scuba vacations. For the Ohio dives, we generally travel to the western part of the state and utilize what we consider the best quarries for scuba diving in Ohio. While it is true that closer quarries exist, we choose quality over convenience. For an extra hour's drive, your enjoyment will increase tenfold. Why learn to dive if it isn't fun?

What the Scuba Crew does...

- Meets once per month to plan dives
- Dives at least once per month
- Makes Scuba dive trips to the quarries and in Lake Erie in the summer and the pools in the winter
- Takes part in Pumpkin carving underwater at Halloween-“Seriously”
- Decorates an Underwater Christmas tree in December
- Participates annually at the Scuba for Diabetes at Cleveland State University - we assemble large puzzles underwater which raises money for diabetes
- Hosts trial scuba dives to uncertified kids to show them how exciting our sport is
- Comes up with project ideas to further other scuba divers skills - for example, we built the Buoyancy course that now hovers at the bottom of White Star quarry in Gibsonburg, Ohio
